Battered Shotgun Baffles Doris Day

Doris Day now knows what her 8-year-old son thinks of the American antiques with which she has proudly furnished her valley home.

According to the star of "Storm Warning," young Terry came home with a battered looking shotgun he had found in a vacant lot.

"Throw that thing away," his mother sternly ordered. "It's dirty and old looking."

To which Terry replied: "Why can't I put it in the parlor with the rest of the antiques? It's as pretty as they are."

Miss Day had nothing further to say.

Odd Coincidence?

Research workers who were involved in uncovering the facts that surround Captain Horatio Hornblower in the studio's picture of that name, are convinced that the hero was not a purely fictional character as Author C. S. Forester would have you believe. Many of the idiosyncrasies seen in Captain Horatio Hornblower, portrayed by Gregory Peck in the Technicolor production, were known to be a part of Lord Nelson's life.

Actors Get Trimmed By Prison Barber

When Steve Cochran, Phillip Carey, Paul Picerni and the rest of the male cast of "The Story Of Folsom" reported for work at the California state prison, they were informed they would have to have their hair cropped. The barber from Warner Bros. started the cutting, but to speed things up he asked for help from the prison barber who has been cutting convicts' hair for 15 years.

The Folsom clipper went to work on Steve Cochran, but presently called over to the studio barber and asked, "Hey, is this the way a 'con's' hair should look in a movie?"

Sang For Her Career

Glady's George, famed dramatic actress

who sings in the Technicolor musical "Lullaby of Broadway" actually was a singer and dancer before she turned to straight comedy and dramatic roles.

Submarine Service In Films Rough On Actor

Submarine fighting in films, says John Wayne who has soldiered on the screen from Iwo Jimà to Rio Grande, is the worst he's encountered on land, sea or air and with both the North and South in the Civil War.

Confined space inside the submarine used for "Operation Pacific" has been the chief hardship of the giant-size star, who stands six feet four inches in his stocking feet.

On his first day in the sub, Wayne conked his head so hard rushing through a low hatch for a scene in the picture, he required medical aid. Subsequently during production his shoulders were bruised from climbing up the two-foot wide deck openings at the order of "Battle stations!"

To add to this, he was practically half-drowned while struggling to close the conning tower hatch during a too-realistic "crash dive" sequence.

"I'll take the Marines or Air Force any time in preference to a sub," said Wayne. "If I 'join' the Navy again for a role, it will be on a nice wide battleship."

Too Many Free Rides For Actor

S. Z. Sakall was on a merry-go-round for two days, and he didn't like it.

While working in a scene from Technicolor musical "Lullaby of Broadway," Sakall, in a swank Fifth Avenue fur salon shopping for a mink jacket for Doris Day, steps up into the shop window to look at a black mist jacket. As he does the show window floor starts to revolve and Sakall finds himself up front in the gaze of passers-by. Constant takes from different angles and distances kept Sakall spinning for two days.

"Round and round goes me," said Sakall, "and dizzier and dizzier gets my head."

Don't Say Gin To Judy

Judy Holliday is the girl not to invite to a card game. One night she and her husband, David Oppenheim, were invited to spend an evening at the home of friends and on arriving Judy was appalled to see the table all arranged for a hot gin rummy game. Judy begged off, saying, "I only play gin rummy for business, not for fun." Judy, of course, is the girl who played the hilarious gin rummy scene in 1643 performances of the stage play "Born Yesterday," and then repeated the sequence for the screen version of the comedy hit. Understandably she is a little surfeited with the game.

Steve Cochran Adopts New Character Touch

In preparation for his cringing role in tense drama "Storm Warning," Steve Cochran developed what he calls his "trembling lower lip."

Cochran's role, that of a Klansman in the picture, is something quite new in the actor's book of villainy. His well-rehearsed snarls and visual and oral toughness were good foundation for the character. But long before the story was finished, both Cochran and Director Stuart Heisler realized the best character touch for the role could be provided by indicating just what a weakling Cochran is when deprived of the protection of his Klan regalia and mask.

"So I rehearsed in front of a mirror by letting my lower lip collapse under the upper one," Steve explained. "I didn't quit until I was satisfied that I looked like a man about to cry, which was the effect Mr. Heisler wanted. He said bullies were nearly always just one emotion removed from tears.

"I don't weep easily, on the screen or off, but with the practice I got during the filming of 'Storm Warning,' I think I can go out and cry against the best of them—the men that is. A woman's tears always wash me out completely."

Actress Hopes Hope Has Job For Her

Patricia Hitchcock, Alfred Hitchcock's

22-year-old daughter, is wondering aloud if Bob Hope still has a job open for her.

Patricia, working on "Strangers On A Train," flourished a wire she received from Hope when she was 12 years old and staring on Broadway in "Solitaire."

In addition to congratulating her on her performance, the wire read: "... and when you make your first picture, I hope you make it with me."

She can't very well make it her first picture, but as Patricia explains it:

"I'm a comedienne, and I can think of nothing more wonderful than appearing with Bob. I'm going to call him and ask how's about it. After all, a gentleman could make a little concession!"

Astute Director

With planes flying over the set of "Operation Pacific" and holding up production, Director George Waggner solved the problem by adding an additional line of dialogue to the script. Star John Wayne casts a look to the sky and says, "The jets are busy today."

Cast Caught In Roomy Triangle

The North Verde Ranch at Victorville, Calif., 100 miles from Hollywood, is the authentic setting of much of the action in "Lightning Strikes Twice."

The old Spanish-type ranch-house not only provided the setting for the mystery drama, but it also served as living quarters for the more than 100 members of the company for the duration of two weeks of location shooting.

Ruth Roman, for example, occupied the room which in the picture is where she first meets Richard Todd. And Todd's room was used for film purposes as Mercedes McCambridge's bedroom.

And just to make everything completely confusing, Mercedes McCambridge's bedroom at the ranch will be seen in the film as Ruth Roman's bedroom!

JIU-
JITSU

HERE'S every science of self-defense and lethal attack, wrapped up into one red-blooded package. This new fast-moving system will make you tough—or it doesn't cost you a cent. You don't need muscles! You don't have to be big! You just have to know how!

In every dynamite-packed page, experts teach you through pictures and stories. How you can K.O. your enemy with one clean scientific wallop! How to master him with punishing, blazing, wrestling holds! How to use his strength to destroy himself through deadly Jiu-Jitsu.

Never again cringe or shy away from a scrap. Imagine the wonderful confidence when you know that you're nobody's slave, that nobody can push you around. Think of the respect others will have for you, the safety they'll feel being with you, when they find out what a rough, tough, scrapping, dead-punching fellow you can be.

You learn quickly and easily through our amazing new "slow-motion picture" method. You learn every clause, every hold, every grip as portrayed by our experts, it's just like getting personal instruction in your own home. And what's more, you don't pay the price of personal instruction. The experts who prepared these instructions want every red-blooded American to know how to defend himself. They want to make a "big man" of every small one. So the price of these books was made so low that everyone could afford to own them. Yes, you can't afford to be without them.

We want you to have all three books. We want you to be able to defend yourself against any attacker, no matter how he fights. Therefore, we'll send you all 3 books for the price of only 2.
